Choose the Fib

Directions: You will find two true statements and one fib in each of the sets of statements below. After reading It's Snowing! by Gail Gibbons, circle the statement that you know is the fib.

- Snow falls on six of the seven continents.

Snow most often falls in places where winters are cold.

Snowflakes almost always have either six sides or six points.
- Less snow falls on Antarctica than on any other continent.

It can be cold and snowy in the Gobi Desert.

Madrid, Spain, is the snowiest city in Europe.
- Blizzards can be dangerous.

A winter storm watch means that people will watch a storm on TV.

Snowshoes help people walk in deep snow.
- Snow can be helpful in many ways.

The largest snowflake ever recorded was 15 inches wide.

The biggest snowfall in one day happened in Seattle, Washington.
- An avalanche is when a group of people quickly ski down the side of a mountain.

A winter storm warning means that your area can receive heavy snow within the next 24 hours.

The weight of snow or ice can bring down tree limbs and power lines.
